

Abstract

A method and apparatus are provided for authenticating a document. The method includes the steps of measuring a plurality of metrics of a suspect document and arranging the metrics into a plurality of data profiles. The method further includes the steps of comparing the plurality of data profiles with a set of envelopes of a library document and determining that the document is authentic when the plurality of profiles conforms with the plurality of envelopes.